Madame Petrova certainly has reproachful eyes. Nobody has been mistreating her, so maybe she was just rehearsing for her Corsican role in which she is featured at the Garden.

In the scene above Dorothy Dalton seems to be paying more attention to the player than to the game, but Savoy patrons, in watching "The Flame," will find her the center of attraction.

Just below it seems a tragedy is about to be enacted. This is but one of the thrilling scenes in "On Trial" at the Strand. But it must be annoying to have one's telephone conversation so rudely interrupted.

Offerings of Current Week For Capital Theater Goers

(Continued from Page Twelve.) has made elaborate preparations. S. Z. Poll, the proprietor of this and a chain of twenty-nine other theaters, has contracted with about fifty of the leading Broadway producers to supply productions for his theater during the coming season, the initial offering of which will be "The O' My Heart," the charming play of love and romance in which J. Hartley Manners, the author, found a world-wide success. The intense interest of the play is in its pointed dialect and frank unfolding of his skillfully drawn characters.

When the author wrote the beautiful story of the winsome Irish miss it was no secret that he intended to produce a role that would bring stellar position to his fiancée, Miss Laurette Taylor. How well he succeeded in fitting the type to his sweet heart of those days the world now knows. She wore the enviable honors of holding the longest continuous success known to the stage. For the production at popular prices a worthy successor has been found and an excellent cast will be seen. Charming Miss Ann Pittwood is the delightful heroine, Ralph Campbell is Jerry, George Barnett is the "silly ass" son, Alaric, George, George, Jarvis, and the others are equally capable. The scenic equipment is the same as adorned the stage of the Cort Theater in New York city during the play's phenomenal run in that city.

Gaiety. "What is it all about?" will be a frequent question at the Gaiety Theater this week, when Blutch Cooper's famous "Eighteeners" company will hold forth, for that is the title of the two-act musical comedy which it presents. The answer, however, will be left to the audience, for the author, Billy K. Wells, despairing of finding a properly descriptive title for the bright and snappy hedonistic comedy, melody, vaudeville, and glittering ensembles which it combines.

"The cast, which is headed by the famous comedians, Will J. Kennedy, Harry Kelly, and Jack Miller, also includes Shirley Laurence, Arthur Delmore, Joe Davis, Kate Forsythe, Ida Clair, Charles Smith, Jack White, Will Lynch, and Andy Smith. Eleven scenes in all are required by the production, ranging from elaborate settings representing the grounds of a fashionable hotel in the Bermuda Islands, to "The Palace of Chance," a famous gambling resort at Monte Carlo. Incidental vaudeville acts include examples of "close harmony" by "The Carnival Four." The chorus, an important adjunct, is composed of twenty charming young women.

Savoy. "The Squaw Man's Son," a motion picture sequel to the successful play, "The Squaw Man," will be shown at Crandall's Savoy both today and tomorrow, with Wallace Reid and Anita King the featured players. The principal tion of the Pinero play of the same title, featuring Marguerite Clark.

Yes, he's some villain. As a Mexican bandit Sessue Hayakawa out-Villa's Villa. You can see for yourself how wicked he is at the Avenue Grand.

Strand. "On Trial," the first National Exhibitors' Circuit's initial offering, picturing Sydney Ainsworth, Barbara Castleton, and James Young, in the leading roles, will head the screen at the Strand today, and extending through to Thursday, inclusive.

From the pen of an unknown writer, Elmer Reizenstein, "On Trial" holds the record of being the most intensely dramatic stage production in years. Its plot concerns a husband's efforts to preserve the good name of his wife after he has killed the man who has invaded their home. Exactly as it was acted on the stage has "On Trial" been filmed. Sidney Ainsworth is seen as the loyal husband, Barbara Castleton plays the suffering wife, James Young is the smug, complacent villain, and little Mary McAllister acts the role of the little daughter.

Deane Harricane, of the expressive brown eyes and delightful personality, will be pictured on Friday and Saturday in a romantic drama entitled "Borrowed Plumage," said to be the crowning achievement of her screen career.

The daily program will include other first-run pictures, and there will be special musical accompaniments by the Strand Symphony Orchestra.

Garden. Mme. Petrova will be the particular star of an all-around good program at Moore's Garden Theater today, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, in her latest success, "To the Death." It is a rich, colorful story of the Southland of historic Corsica, and amid the picturesque scenery of this country is acted a story of dramatic fire.

Blanca Sylvia is the sole support of her sister Rosa when she goes to Paris to make the most of her talents as an artist. Poor, foolish little Rosa comes to grief. Returning, Blanca swears over the girl's dead body to follow her sister's betrayer "To the Death." The true culprit is a scoundrelly secret service agent. He casts the blame upon another, the man Blanca loves. But, true to her race, she plunges a dagger in his breast. By a miracle, all ends happily in the drama. Little Rosa is avenged and Blanca finds her happiness in the lover she has mistrusted.

Crandall's. "Tides of Fate," a photoplay based on Kate Jordan's novel, "Creeping Tides," will hold the screen at Crandall's today and tomorrow, with Alexandra Carlisle heading the cast. It is a story of both English and American life, the heroine of which is a young girl who unknowingly marries a counterfeiter. Later, the man is traced by the police who arrest the girl as an accomplice and both are sentenced to prison. How she makes her escape to America and finally finds happiness after a series of exciting adventures brings the story to a gripping conclusion.

For Tuesday and Wednesday, the attraction will be "Hell Morgan's Girl," a story of underworld life in San Francisco before the fire and earthquake. Spectacular scenes are said to be a predominating feature of this film.

Commencing Thursday, the attraction for the remainder of the week will be "The Amazons," a picturized

Capital Resorts Offer Variety of Out-Door Pleasure

Labor Day will be fittingly observed at Glen Echo Park, a number of special features having been added to the regular fun program that has proven so popular all this season. In anticipation of another record-breaking holiday crowd a car service has been provided that will have cars running through from the heart of the city at intervals of only a few minutes.

For the Sunday visitors the management has secured again the local organization that earlier in the summer made its "hit" with Glen Echo patrons. Sol Minster's own band, which will be heard in a series of concerts in the afternoon. In addition there will be a special showing of photoplays, which, like the concerts, is free.

Tomorrow and all the week the dancers will have their innings in the big pavilion where a ten-piece orchestra plays nightly, and the daily amusement schedule will be launched with the free movies. For the thrill seekers the derby racer and the gravity will be right at hand, and the midway, with its host of joy providers, the carrousel, and all the long list of other amusements will provide entertainment diversified enough to suit all tastes.

Marshall Hall. At beautiful, historic Marshall Hall, on the Potomac river, this year's Labor Day will be fittingly celebrated, the management having provided a number of attractions and concerts will be given by Schroeder's Military Band.

Dancing in the extensive pavilion overlooking the river will be featured both afternoon and evening. The steamer Charles Macalester will make the usual trips to and from Marshall Hall, sailing from the Seventh street wharf at 10 a. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Great Falls Park. Labor Day at Great Falls Park will be celebrated in a fitting manner with a variety of attractions and concerts by the Ladies' Orchestra both in the afternoon and evening with free dancing and a special showing of photoplays. For the children there are a number of popular amusements and an ideal day's outing is to be enjoyed at this picturesque and historic resort. The sea searching for lost treasures in old wrecks. There is also a thrilling combat pictured between a diver and a giant octopus. Scenes from under the ocean, on earth and sky, combine to make this submarine photodrama of Jules Verne's famous story one of thrills and amusement.

Casino. This week's offering at the Casino Theater will be the remarkable allegorical fantasy "Purity," which has attracted the widest attention and been the subject of much heated discussion. The principal personage in the work is Miss Audrey Munson, whom famous artists have declared to be the "most perfect model." She has posed not only for artists of international renown, but for the greatest living sculptors. The McMillan memorial fountain, by Herbert Adams, which adorns the Capitol grounds in this city, carries three reproductions of Miss Munson's figure.

"Purity" is the story of the quest of a young and struggling poet for his ideal of womanhood, and a romance absorbing interest has been woven about the search. Miss Munson, appearing in the name part, is seen in a wide variety of poetic expressions, most of them filmed in woodland glades in California, and she is surrounded in many of them by a large company of dancers carefully selected from the school of Ruth St. Denis in Los Angeles.

The picture, which is in seven parts, will be shown at the Casino at 2:30 in the afternoon and at 8:20 at night throughout this week.

Arliiss Sheds Dressing Gown But Clings to Goose Quill

By all accounts George Arliiss, who comes to the National Theater in his new play, "Hamilton," should by this time be highly skilled in the use of the quill pen.

The talented actor used that feathered instrument of calligraphy in "Disraeli," abused it largely in "Paganini," and mused over many samples of it in "The Professor's Love Story."

By that time the goose quill was the property master's despair, for the demand was great, the supply meager. Now once again in "Hamilton" is Mr. Arliiss to be seen in a play of the period when steel pens were unknown.

While the outlook for geese is serious, yet not all is gloom. Though the property master will have his troubles, the wardrobe department will rejoice, for Arliiss will lay aside the dressing gowns which, of one hue or another, have clung to him for a decade of plays, and assume the velvets, silks and laces of the period in whose uses Hamilton was pre-eminent.

GEORGE ARLISS.

Beverly Bayne Now Most Photographed Woman in the World

There was a time when Lillian Russell's right to be called the "most photographed woman in the world" could not be questioned, but that day has passed. Beverly Bayne, Metro's charming little star, who is co-featured with Francis X. Bushman in the forthcoming wonderplay de luxe, "The Compact," has been photographed no less than 9,000,000 times. And when she has completed "The Compact," Miss Bayne will have added 25,000 more photographs to the list.

Beverly Bayne has appeared as a star in no less than 300 five-reel photoplays. She has appeared in several shorter ones at the start of her career, and during the time she has been a Metro star she has appeared in several longer ones, but taking only the five-reel photoplays, Miss Bayne has been snapped by the camera in more than 9,000,000 different positions.

There are 5,000 feet of film to the average five-reel production. In making the pictures, before it goes to the cutting room, at least 7,400 feet of film are taken. Assuming that Miss Bayne, as one of the stars, appears in two-thirds of the scenes of the photoplay, she has had 1,500,000 feet of film made of herself. And this is the negative. There have been more than 1,000,000,000 positives made of Beverly Bayne, who is today the most photographed woman in the world.

If all the still photographs of Miss Bayne were added to this, as well as the parts of pictures taken but never shown, Miss Bayne could truthfully say that she has been pictured over 1,500,000,000 times.

Gayety Theater To Give Horse to Popular Officer

The announcement made by Manager Jarvis of the Gayety Theater that his house will donate a saddle horse to the most popular mounted commissioned officer in the District National Guard, has resulted in the development of a spirit of friendly rivalry between the members of that organization.

The horse, was purchased by the theater from Major Gerald Griffin, surgeon general in charge of local veterinarian hospitals attached to the army. It was ridden by him personally during the period that he was attached to Fort Sam Houston in Texas. Before the sale was consummated, it was given a thorough examination by Dr. R. C. Tilly, veterinarian in charge at the depot quartermaster's stables, who pronounced him sound.

It is a beautiful brown, marked with black points, is ten hands high, and weighs 1,000 pounds. It was bred on the famous "Ranch C" in Arizona, and bears that brand, together with that of the Government. "Wipers" is the name it bore when Major Griffin purchased it, the origin of which is to be traced to the mispronunciation of the French word "Tyras" by Cockney soldiers.

Major Griffin states that while at Fort Sam Houston, he organized the Remount Cross Country Club, the course in connection with which had thirty-two jumps of the varying sizes used in army training for horses, all of which "Wipers" made unflinchingly. So proficient became the animal on these jumps, that he was later used as a "school horse" for beginners.

The competition at the Gayety is to be determined by a voting contest, one vote being allowed every patron attending the house the week of September 2 to 8.

NEARS COMPLETION. Crandall's Knickerbocker Theater, located at Eighteenth and Columbia road, the latest addition to local amusement enterprises, is practically completed and will be opened soon.
